

Wildwood Gallery's "Nearly Winter" Update

Sue and Robbie of Wildwood Gallery have lots of art events happening over the next couple of months, so here's a quick update for you!

After our absolutely incredible trip to the USA recently to see "the big red rocks" of Utah, Sue has started her "B.R.R." series.

The latest issue of the New Zealand Artist magazine, available now in book shops, has my article in it about my art work, with part of the info also on their website:

<http://thenzartist.co.nz/Collection/May-Jun-2017.html#five> .

The next issue of this supportive art magazine will feature my painting demonstration. I really enjoyed writing these articles, so please go pick up a copy and support them right back!

At Hilltop School, Sue has been having an extremely rewarding time teaching an elective called "Arting Around" to a fantastic group of creative students who have designed and painted colourful butterflies to decorate outdoors around the Junior area. Her holiday classes were also enjoyed by a group of keen kids, and next holiday painting classes will be offered again.

The next big event around here will be the annual Queen's Birthday Art Trail, run by Taupo Art Connection, which is continuing to prove a pro-active group on the Taupo art scene. Our latest outdoor kinetic butterfly will be on display: our first Yellow Admiral (Kahukowhai), along with some gorgeous little wood-turned bowls by Robbie, plus his latest in the Evolution series "Kanikani" and current paintings by Sue.

Queen's Birthday Art Trail is only a couple of weeks away now!!

Pop down and check out what we have been up to lately. Take a 12-minute drive down to Wildwood Gallery's Winter Warm-up!

We'll fire up the brazier, and on Sat/Sun afternoons you can enjoy a cup of warm "glugg" while browsing the gallery to view our latest creations. Art demonstrations by Robbie and Sue, woodturning, paintings, sculpture, photography and commissions available.

Robbie has some great new picture frames now available, so ask about his framing service. Also on display will be some of his spectacular new photographs on stretched canvas.
